

Global Project Management Job Trends 2023

Despite the threat of a global recession, project talent is still in demand.

Here's a quick around-the-world look at what to expect in 2023.

Save this and check out our latest Jobs
Report in its entirety!

Asia Pacific Talent Trends

“Listening to my own network of professionals, it is astonishing how many well-paid job offers those with high-demand skill sets are currently getting.”

Miri Yim

Information and Communication Technology Operations Officer
Green Climate Fund
Incheon, South Korea

China Talent Trends

“I’m facing massive risks to project delivery. It’s partially caused by no new influx of bodies and brains. When you combine that with a group of people who have left temporarily or long term, it creates extra tension.”

Marcel Ekkel

Project and Program Manager
SynergySynQ
Hong Kong

Europe Talent Trends

“The economic uncertainty and rising prices have touched everyone’s lives, but we haven’t yet seen project-heavy organizations pulling back. In fact, some industries have more major project activity underway.”

Reham Bennis

Senior Consultant
Adept Management
London

Latin America Talent Trends

“Many people in Latin America say there are no jobs, but that’s not true. There’s a mismatch between the available workforce and the skills needed for open positions.”

Jose Octavio Rodriguez, PMP
Market Service Latin America Transformation Leader
Nokia
Mexico City

Middle East and North Africa Talent Trends

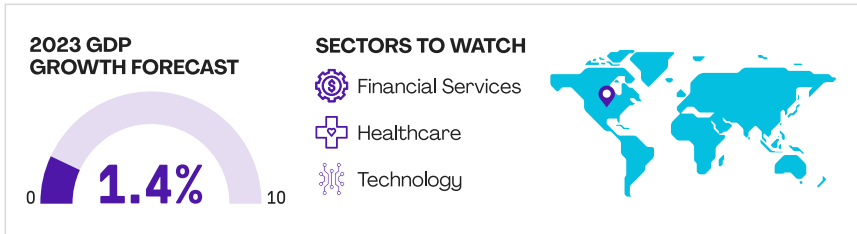

“Project professionals who effectively develop (resilience and adaptability) will stand out in any project environment.”

Badr Burshaid

Program Director
Saudi Aramco
Dhahran, Saudi Arabia

North America Talent Trends

“Organizations face many novel challenges today that project talent is uniquely fit to tackle.”

Taiwo Abraham, PMP

Program Manager
Horizant
Ottawa

South Asia Talent Trends

“Most organizations are now into rebuild and reinvent phases focused on business model innovation and growth. Project management talent is uniquely poised to take advantage of this great opportunity by converting ideas into scalable innovations to provide a competitive edge to businesses. This will open up enormous career growth opportunities.”

Alarka Purkayastha

Digital Transformation Leader
Accenture
Bengaluru

Sub-Saharan Africa Talent Trends

“Just having technical project management skills isn’t enough. Hiring managers tend to be seeking project managers who also possess leadership skills, together with strategic and business management skills.”

Devan Naidu

Project Management Office Head
East London Industrial Development Zone
South Africa

Be Sure to explore

Global Project
Management
Job Trends
2023
in its entirety.

Available
NOW

Global Project Management
Job Trends 2023

